ABOUT ME

A self-taught Frontend developer with hands-on experience building projects on industry-proven technology. My career has been in the circular economy of consumer electronics, but the passion for software development has forced a career change. Expertise in consumer hardware aside; My new goal is an entry-level developer position I can contribute to, and a work culture in which I can develop. I have had work-related overseas tours and I feel safe in all kinds of dynamic, social and cultural environments. I possess great internal drive but prioritize the group over the self.
